Biographical Note

Gerald B. Webb, Jr., was a longtime horseman and foxhunter. After graduating from the University of Virginia, Webb took a job as the managing editor of The Fauquier Democrat. However, he left that position to found The Middleburg Chronicle with fellow foxhunter Stacy Lloyd; Webb served as managing editor. Published on September 17, 1937, the first issue of the weekly briefly discussed local politics on the front page before devoting the following seven pages to equestrian news. The focus would eventually become equestrian sports throughout the world as the weekly's popularity and circulation grew; Lloyd and Webb soon shortened the name to The Chronicle. Webb joined the military in 1942 but returned to The Chronicle in 1945. Unfortunately, Webb would not enjoy the journal's success for long. On April 19, 1947, Gerald Webb was killed while competing in the Fox Hunters Challenge Cup. His horse crashed while attempting a jump and Webb's spur caught in his leathers; he was dragged by the horse for half a mile. He never regained consciousness, and died later that evening at the Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland.

Collection Description

The Gerald Webb Photograph Albums consist of 16 albums containing photographs of various equestrian events throughout the Middleburg area from 1935 to 1941. However, a few photographs date beyond Webb's death; presumably the scrapbooks were continued by members of The Chronicle's staff. The sequential numbering of the albums appears to reflect a rough chronological order, and some photographs seem to be grouped according to subject matter. Thus, the albums have been arranged according to their assigned numbers, with the unlabeled album housed last.
